My American Journal: Imagine this: after I'd been writing it, I went to find a photo of a squirrel or a pug in a photo booth. That's when my realization of advertising sales paid off: I chose photos of children to sell my prints.

That's how my first year of selling custom cards began: in person, at family reunions. I started thinking that this could be a business, so I began creating cards for a company called Photo Booth Prints. Please see my interview for Photo Booth Prints on page 148.
